Sharada Sheppard Why don't you have a raffle? Most of us can't afford to buy it. But we would take a chance with a raffle.

Shamanic Harmonics: Psychedelic Art & Jewelry

Awesome idea, I was thinking about doing something like that, but I searched online, and I just didn't see any "online raffle" software/apps that looked cool for a one time thing - BUT if you know of one, please let me know...

THE PROVABLY FAIR BITCOIN BLOCKCHAIN RAFFLE

- Random numbers can be generated through the bitcoin blockchain by using the transaction hashes as unique IDs
- By taking the block height hash as a variable modulated by the number of raffle tickets, a permanent ledger of the winning ticket can be created and verified independently by all participants.
- An open source calculator created by we.lovebitco.in is used to calculate the winner

ADDING CRYPTO CURRENCY PAYMENT OPTIONS

- For these experimental currencies to truly be transfer of value currencies, they cannot be purchased only to HODL. Currencies need to be used as currency.
- Allows the seller to pick and choose the digital currencies as well as toggle on and off during times of unacceptable volatility or distressing news
- Direct peer-to-peer payments, just like Satoshi intended, no middle man taking fees, holding payments, creating opaque Terms and Conditions, etc.
- Allows investors a mechanism to avoid having to cash out profits to fiat, which they then later would use to buy the sellers products, but only after paying transaction fees at every point when cashing out altcoin profits

FUTURE VISIONS

- Adding Functionality for Auctions
- Adding Classified Ad Functionality
- Creation of full-fledged Marketplace for sellers will enable wide-spread adoption of cryptocurrencies to the mainstream
 - People are familiar with the online experience of using Ebay, Etsy, Craigslist
 - Adding Crypto Payments creates immediate use cases and increases the circulating supply
 - Increased adoption can lead to more established societal frameworks for digital currency commerce
